one day seminar on “Youth and Resurgent India”

On 19th January 2016

Dept. of History and Economics organized in collaboration with Rau’s IAS Study Circle.

The 1st technical session of the history seminar was conducted by Dr Rajesh Ranjan, head, department of history, RAU’S IAS study circle, New Delhi. His session was on “women empowerment through civil services”. He focused on the importance of women in all fields of today’s world. Importance should be placed upon women’s education for not only will it enrich them but also will give them empowerment. They can be independent if only they are aware about their rights. That awareness will free them from all types of subjugations and sufferings both domestic and public. Dr. Ranjan emphasized that one important way through which women can fight her subjugation is by joining Indian administration, so that they can participate in the functioning of the system and bring about changes in the faulty laws of the society.

The 2ND Technical session was conducted by Dr. NirajBharadwaj, on “Developing skills for competitive exams” Dr. Bharadwajis working with Rau's IAS Study Circle, since 2002. He started the session motivating the students to take the opportunity of undertaking Civil Service as a career option. He gave a brief idea about the steps for undertaking civil service exam. He mentioned about the stages that one has to pass through while he or she appears for the Civil Service Exams. The talk was extremely motivating which left a resonance of the belief that nothing is impossible in life.
